FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE: May 7, 2003

Washington Scholars of 2003 announced

OLYMPIA-Report cards lined with straight As are nothing new for the 147 students named as this year's Washington Scholars by the Higher Education Coordinating Board (HECB) and the Association of Washington School Principals (AWSP). Chosen for their outstanding academic achievement, leadership ability and community service, the high school seniors receiving the award have maintained a perfect or near-perfect grade point average over the past four years, while participating in a wide range of activities.

The Washington Scholars Program honors the accomplishments of three high school seniors from each of the state's 49 legislative districts. The students receive state grants for up to four years of resident undergraduate tuition and fees that can be used at any Washington public or private college or university.

HECB Executive Director Marc Gaspard said the 2003 Scholars include musicians, student government leaders, award-winning debaters and athletes - who still make time to help others.

"All of the award recipients have excelled in the classroom," Gaspard said, "and their planned fields of study in college range from medicine and astrophysics to theatre and broadcasting. Meanwhile, they have maintained a commitment to volunteer at hospitals and food banks, plant trees, and build houses - and in the case of one student - even do cancer research."

Now in its 22nd year, the Washington Scholars Program is administered by the HECB in cooperation with the Washington Association of Secondary School Principals, the high school component of AWSP. Statewide, high school principals nominate the top 1 percent of their graduating senior classes as Scholar Candidates. A selection committee, composed of high school principals and college admissions staff, review the candidates' applications to select the top four students in each legislative district, naming three as scholars and one as a scholar alternate. This year, more than 620 students were nominated.

“The selection committee faced an extremely difficult challenge in choosing only 147 scholars,” Gaspard said. “All of the nominees are remarkable students who have not only worked hard in school, but are already making a difference in the world around them. The Washington Scholars Program serves to remind us that our future is in very good hands.”

Brian Barker, AWSP executive director, said the Washington Scholars Program pays tribute to a wide array of talent in schools across the state.

“The celebration of these students is a reflection of their hard work, selflessness and determination,” Barker said. “It is also a comment on the love and support their parents, teachers, principals and communities have provided to produce these gifted young citizens.”

“AWSP values the contributions these students have already made in their schools and communities, and eagerly looks forward to their next accomplishments in college and beyond,” Barker added. “Their leadership is integral to the future of this state.”

State leaders will honor the 2003 Scholars on May 15 in Olympia. Morning events at the United Churches Building, 11th and Washington, will include a recognition ceremony and presentations by state Sens. Don Carlson and Jeanne Kohl-Welles and Reps. Phyllis Gutierrez-Kenney and Skip Priest.

Students will later be honored during a recognition luncheon in Olympia at the Red Lion Hotel, beginning at 12:30 p.m. Gov. Gary Locke will offer the keynote address. The cost of the luncheon is being underwritten by Comcast.
